THREE MEN ROB A BANK

ENTERED FINANCIAL INSTITUTION AT CAMDEN POINT AND GOT $4,000.

HAD LIVELY BATTLE WITH CITIZENS

Many Shots Were Exchanged, but the Robbers Got Away—Were Later Captured—Large Rewards Offered for Them.

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 27.—At Camden Point, thirty miles southeast of this city at an early hour this morning the Bank of Camden Point was robbed by three men, and $4,000 in currency taken.

A fierce battle between citizens and the robbers took place, in which many shots were exchanged, but the robbers escaped.

The robbery was first discovered by Prof. Barhan, president of the Camden Point college, who saw a light in the bank and gave the alarm. Three explosions occurred after the alarm had been given. The safe and the entire interior of the bank were completely wrecked.

The robbers were captured at 8 o'clock this morning in the woods on the Platte river near the Edgerton Junction station, on the Rock Island railroad.

They were taken to Platte City and placed in jail. The loot secured is now said to be about $2,500, of which $1,000 was in silver.

The robbers later told where they had hid the money in a straw stack near Edgerton.

One of the bandits was identified as Clyde Reed, son of a respectable farmer near Edgerton. He is 25 years old.

Big Rewards Were Offered.

W. F. Keyser of the city, secretary of the Missouri Bankers' association, today said that his association had offered a reward of $500 each for the arrest and conviction of the robbers and that the insurance company had offered an additional $200 for each. The bank, Mr. Keyser says, is amply protected from loss by the insurance it carried against such happenings.

STAR DANCE OF SEASON

PHI LAMBDA EPSILON FRATERNITY GAVE IT AT FLEMING'S HALL.

SEVENTY-FIVE COUPLES DANCED

Heiner's Orchestra From Kansas City Furnished the Music and Rembough the Refreshments—A Truly Delightful Function

The members of the Phi Lambda Epsilon fraternity gave the star dance of the season at Fleming's hall last night. Fully seventy-five couples attended.

The hall was most artistically decorated in advance of the affair, the fraternity colors—scarlet, white and gold—predominating throughout. In one portion of the hall was a sign, with beautiful electrical effects, bearing the words, "Phi Lambda Epsilon."

There were twenty dancing numbers, with four extra numbers, and in addition, there were two moonlight dances, all lights being darkened and the dancers enjoying themselves in the light of the moon.

A lengthy intermission was held during the evening, during which Rembough served delicious refreshments of turkey, sandwiches, fruit salad, olives, coffee and lemon ice.

The grand march was led by Miss Florence Potteet and Louis Quigley. Heiner's orchestra, of Kansas City, consisting of six pieces, furnished the music.

Colored waiters served the refreshments, and everything was carried out in royal style, the universal opinion being that the dance was the most elaborate in every detail ever held in the Queen City.

HARDIN BADLY BEATEN

CONSTABLE J. E. LOVE WHIPPED SALOON KEEPER TO THE QUEEN'S TASTE.

HE HAD CALLED OFFICER D-D LIAR

Then the Latter Got Busy and the Trouncing is Said to Have Been One of the Most Thorough Ever Administered.

Charles Hardin, a West Main street saloon keeper, whose name occupies a conspicuous place on the roll of honor in the "Bad Lands," was whipped in excellent style, as he should have been, by Constable J. E. Love this morning, and hereafter he likely will guard more closely the words he addresses to an officer.

Hardin recently was sent a friendly letter by Mr. Love, who requested him to settle a little bill through the constable's office. Hardin took offense at the letter, and early this morning met the officer, whom he reproached for sending the letter.

For over an hour Hardin abused Mr. Love in numerous ways, but the latter controlled his temper until the stage arrived when patience ceased to be a virtue.

The two men and W. D. O'Bannon, the lawyer, were talking together in Judge Rickman's office, when Hardin became more abusive. Flashing a $10 bill in Mr. Love's face, he made the remark that he would bet that sum that Mr. Love was a liar.

At this stage of the proceedings Constable Love got busy, and eye-witnesses say that Hardin was given as thorough a trouncing as any person ever received in Sedalia.

Here was where Hardin showed what he was made of. A man of his calibre, who has predominated on the "bowery" for years, acting the part of a "bully" and taking no dares from anyone, should not have been whipped so easily, but it's no wonder that Hardin walked down the street with his eyes toward the ground, for his heretofore bad fighting spirit had disappeared, and amid the derision of every person who had witnessed the scene he hurried from the place, a wiser man in one respect and a worse whipped man than he had ever been before.

Hardin's wounds about the head were numerous and caused the blood to flow freely, but he managed to walk away, after he had taken a needed rest in the "four courts."

"FIXING" IT UP AGAIN

The Fourth Street Paving That Was Recently "Repaired."

The Brown Roofing company today began repairing the recently repaired asphalt paving on Fourth street, between Ohio and Osage avenues, against which the property owners in that block remonstrated, requesting that the tax bills for the work be held up until the street is properly bettered.

The firm doing the work completed Fourth street some time ago, but soon afterward the street began to show signs of wearing, and to prevent it from again resuming the old condition the council requested that the street be fixed properly.

SHOT AT NEGRO ASSAILANT

Woman Fired at an Unknown Man With a Shotgun.

Chickasha, Ok., Dec. 27.—A negro tried to attack Mrs. Jesse Tyree, a farmer's wife, who lives five miles southeast of Blanchard, Wednesday morning about 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Tyree was at her home alone. The negro asked for something to eat. The woman consented to give him something and turned to go into the pantry.

The negro said: "I'll go with you." The woman retorted: "You won't," and the negro tried to seize her. She got a shotgun which stood in a corner. The negro ran and Mrs. Tyree fired but she does not believe she hit him.

LOCAL OPTION ELECTION

AGITATION TO THAT END NOW BEFORE THE PEOPLE OF MACON COUNTY.

WANT TO GET INTO "DRY" COLUMN

Macon City and Bevier Will Vote Separately, and the Wets Feel Confident the Saloons Will Not Be Closed.

Macon, Mo., Dec. 27.—A petition is being prepared in the northern part of Macon county, requesting the county court to order a local option election.

The towns of Macon and Bevier will vote separately, if at all. At present there is no indication of the issue being raised in either of the towns named, but it is likely a campaign will be started in them if a vote is ordered in the county.

The move for a local option election comes from the general trend of the state toward temperance, and it is not the result of any local disorder in the saloons.

Macon will soon be surrounded by local option counties, and the temperance people do not want to be marooned when the water wagon passes.

The town of Macon runs its own electric light and waterworks, and the saloon revenue is an important element that will figure in the matter if the issue is raised here.

CANVASS A STRIKE VOTE

OFFICIALS OF RAILROAD ORIGINERS ARE TO MEET IN CHICAGO, ILL.

MORE PAY IS ONE OF THE DEMANDS

Improved Conditions of Labor Also Wanted—No Fewer Than Sixty-Five Railroads Are in the List Affected.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Members of the executive committee of the Order of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, with Garretson, Morrissy and other officials, will meet in the Sherman house tomorrow to canvass the vote just cast by the members of the organizations on whether they shall affiliate in making concerted demands for more pay and improved conditions of labor. All of the territory east of the Mississippi river is affected, as is also Eastern Canada. Should the vote be favorable to making the demands the chairman of each system will be notified by wire. Then on next Thursday a simultaneous demand will be made on the general officers of the sixty-five roads involved. The general committees of all the railroad systems will convene on January 20 in the cities where the railroads have their headquarters in order to demand an answer to the proposals.

Attempts will be made to arrange conferences with the railroad officials, but if compromise propositions are offered by any of the railroads the workmen will not have authority to agree on terms of settlement, but must report to the grand officials.

Changes of a radical nature, as well as increased pay are to be demanded for every branch of the service. One of the changes asked for is the abolition of the "double header,"—two locomotives with only one train crew—the two engines to be permitted in extraordinary cases only.

The "double headers" was the question which led to the famous Pennsylvania strike in 1877, which cost millions of dollars and many lives.

The vote now being taken is not a strike vote directly, but one to determine the sentiment of the men as to the proposed questions. The principal demands are as follows:

A—On runs of 4,500 miles per month, or over, the pay of passenger conductors to be $2.75 per mile; baggage men, $1.65 per mile; flagmen, $1.56 per mile, and brakemen, $2.25 per day.

B—On runs of 4,500 miles, or less, per month, the pay of passenger conductors to be not less than $4.25 per day; baggage men, $2.55 per day; flagmen, $2.35 per day, and brakemen, $2.25 per day.

C—Overtime on through passenger service to be based on a speed of twenty-five miles per hour, to be computed from the time the men are required to report for duty and to continue until they are relieved at the end of the run, and to be paid for at the following rates: Conductors 42.5 cents per hour; baggage men, 25.5 cents per hour; flagmen, 23.5 cents per hour; brakemen, 22.5 cents per hour; less than thirty minutes not to be counted, and thirty minutes or over to be paid for as an hour.

The demands made by trainmen employed in freight service are as follows:

In all freight service, 100 miles or less, ten hours or less to constitute a day's work; overtime to be considered after ten hours. On runs of over 100 miles overtime to be paid for on a basis of speed of ten miles per hour. Through and irregular freight service to be paid for as follows: Conductors, 3.8 cents per mile; flagmen, 2.63 cents per mile; brakemen, 2.7 cents per mile; 100 miles or less to be paid for as 100 miles. Local and pick-up conductors are to be paid 4.5 cents per mile; flagmen, 2.8 cents per mile, and brakemen 2.7 per mile. With trains of over thirty cars, exclusive of caboose, the practice of double-heading is to be discontinued, except in inclement weather or to avoid running light.

It is set forth that the Chicago standard of rates of pay are to govern all terminal, divisional or other important yards. All other yards are to be paid 1 cent per hour less than the Chicago rate of pay. Ten hours or less shall constitute a day's work.

If these demands should be sustained by the railroad workmen and be refused by the officials of the railways involved, it is likely that one of the most determined strikes in railroad history will result.

A LABOR UNION ILLEGAL

OHIO JUDGE RULED AGAINST THE WINDOW GLASS WORKERS.

POLICY CONTRARY TO PUBLIC GOOD

Association Has Six Thousand Members and $100,000 in Its Treasury—Decision Was Rendered at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Dec. 27.—Judge Phillips, in common pleas court, yesterday decided that John A. Healey, who has sued for dissolution of the Amalgamated Window Glass Workers of America, has good cause of action, overruled a demurrer to the petition filed by the union.

The court held that the association is an illegal one, because its policy is contrary to the public rights; that it destroyed the commercial individuality of its members, and impaired the right of manufacturers to conduct their own business.

The court will make an injunction, limiting the purposes for which money in the treasury may be expended until the case is heard on its merits. The glass workers' union has 6,000 members and $100,000 in the treasury.

Healey represents two branches of the membership known as the cutters and fitters.

He said they were being discriminated against. The blowers and gathers denied this.

NO OKLAHOMA "BLUE" LAW

Shawnee, Okla., Dec. 27.—Under the Oklahoma laws Sunday theatres are legal, according to the opinion rendered here by Justice George Carter, in a case wherein promoters of moving picture shows were arraigned for Sunday law violation.

The action was brought by the county authorities and is the first ruling of its kind in Oklahoma.

THREE DEAD IN A WRECK

TWO PENNSYLVANIA PASSENGER TRAINS WENT TOGETHER IN CAMDEN, N. J.

OCCURRED ON ELEVATED TRACKS

Trains Took Fire, but Flames Did Not Reach the Victims—Seventeen Were Injured, Some of Whom May Die.

Camden, N. J., Dec. 27.—Three persons were killed and seventeen injured in a rear end collision on the elevated tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad today, a short distance from the station in this city. The cars were badly smashed and fire added to the difficulties of rescue.

The trains were the express from Atlantic City and the Pemberton accommodation train. They met in a thick fog, while both were running cautiously. The Atlantic City train stopped just as it was about to enter the city, but the engineer of the Pemberton train did not see the Atlantic City train until it was close upon it and they came together with considerable force. The tender of the Pemberton train telescoped the first car of its train, killing three persons and injuring at least four. The rear car of the Atlantic City train was wrecked, but not so badly as the first car of the accommodation.

As far as is known no one was killed on the express, but half a dozen persons were injured.

The wreckage immediately took fire from coals of the locomotive, but the fire was extinguished before it had reached any of the victims.

The fact that the collision occurred on an elevated structure made the work of rescue very difficult.

The dead are: C. H. Brown, Moorestown, N. J.; J. L. Garbarani, Mount Holly, N. J.; T. L. Webster, Merchantville, N. J.

Some of the injured may die.

ROSE AGAINST CHINESE

Mob in British Possessions Wreck Oriental Quarter of Town.

Restaurants and laundries were smashed and doors and windows and entire fronts of buildings reduced to splinters.

The regular police were powerless and a brigade of mounted police had to be called out to quell the riot.

PESSIMIST IS ABROAD.

The pessimist is abroad again. He has returned with all his dire predictions about unknown and unseen dangers and trials through which the nation is about to pass. He is the calamity howler of olden times. He is always waiting for an opportunity to give vent to his pent up apprehensions that the country is going to the dogs. If he isn't awake and preaching a gloomy future, he is asleep and dreaming of hobgoblins and other mythical bugaboos. His life is miserable unless there is something to complain about and he is happiest when he imagines there is a great deal to find fault with.

Since the money shortage of a few weeks ago made itself felt in a slight business depression, he has been out in all his glory. A great panic his imaginative brain has discovered lurking somewhere beyond the horizon. It was coming, coming, coming. Nothing could stop it. It would sweep the country with awful effect, and when desolation and misery were left in the lonely wake of the storm, he would mount the housetops and exclaim with triumph, "I told you so."

But the country is learning the pessimist. It is coming to appreciate his true worth. It has had experience with him so often that it no longer takes his mutterings seriously. "It has discovered him to be a false prophet, a man with a grievance, so sored on life and its opportunities that the milk and honey of prosperity are curdled by his breath. His ranks are thinning."

The army of optimists has swelled to proportions that drown his plaintive cry. There are a thousand optimists today in this great land of plenty where one pessimist has survived. Faith in the nation and its future was never stronger. Prosperity and progress are still the guiding stars of contented people. They fear no "panic." If financial and commercial depression come, well and good. It will not remain long, and while it is here it will correct a deal that is wrong.

The troubles of the day are but momentary. They will pass with a night. If we have them, let us forget them and be merry; this beautiful holiday season.

THE COMPTROLLER'S RECOMMENDATION.

Comptroller Ridgely has made his annual report to congress, and in it he makes the recommendation that he has made for five successive years, namely, the establishment of a central national bank under government control. There has been a deal of talk about currency reform, sometimes by people who know nothing about it and sometimes by those who did and had axes to grind. Many of the plans of reform suggested have been nebulous and some have been chimerical. But the plan suggested by the comptroller is for straight out reform on lines that have been tried by other governments and proven reliable.

He advocates a central national bank under government control that would have supervision and direction of all other national banks, and would regulate the issue of notes according to the demands of the country, recalling notes when there was a plethora of money and issuing more in times of demand when it was needed for crop moving and other purposes.

This is the plan, with some variations, of the Imperial Bank of Germany, the Bank of England and the Bank of France. The institution has the guarantee of the government behind it, and there is never any fear of its stability as long as the government is solvent, and this, with the government of the United States, with its immense national resources and growing trade and manufactures, would be a long time.

The comptroller points out that while a temporary expedient, like the import of gold at a high premium, or the issue of government bonds or notes may meet a particular emergency, it has no lasting effect. Panic is bound to follow panic until there is some radical measure taken for the insurance of business conditions. The establishment of a government bank has been recommended for five successive years, but this year there is more cause than ever to consider it seriously. The plan is already to hand and congress can act on it, if it will, at the present session.

The treasury department has decided to remove the wire edges on the new twenty-dollar gold pieces that tend to wear holes in the pockets. Now, if they could just eliminate the heat that tends to burn holes, too.

A headline announces that Adele Ritchie has been poisoned by a chicken sandwich. We have more reason to suspect the press agent than the sandwich, but even then he might have made it pate de foie gras.

Just as Mr. Loeb was congratulating himself that he had escaped the blame of the president's third term announcement, Mr. Cortelyou accused him of having brought it about by underhand methods.

There will be one mighty disgusted man in congress if that battleship fleet comes back without giving Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson a chance to say, "I told you so."

Ode from Georgia, January 1: The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year, The time the blithesome cockatoo dies and juleps disappear.

If the government does decide to finance the national campaigns, it may make them a little more economical of campaign oratory. And that would help some.

It is announced that Vice President Fairbanks has been invited to another banquet. It is a safe guess that he will see the cocktails are kept out of automobile range.

Jeff Davis' ideas about trust regulation are all right. The trouble is that they are not shared by the majority who are the people the trusts send to congress.

It is to be hoped Indiana will not adopt the Vermont plan of getting up booms for her favorite literary sons. The band wagon certainly would be crowded.

Wonder if Secretary Taft thought there was anything significant about returning to the United States on a boat named after a president?

The chief trouble is that the people with the best circulating capacity are usually not the ones who have the money to circulate.

At any rate, President Roosevelt has the distinction of being about the only republican of prominence who is not after the nomination.

In spite of the fact that the president has signalled "clear track" for the other booms, there is danger of some rear end collisions.

BESSIE'S PICKPOCKET

By MARGIE M. WILLIS

(Copyright.)

"You must be careful of your money," Mr. Pembroke said, "extra careful. You will have quite a little amount, and carry it safely, for Grant just told me that thieves and pickpockets are about. Some pretty serious robberies have occurred lately, not so far from here, either."

Bessie Pembroke's blue eyes opened widely. Bessie was only 18 years old and she was about to go to the city to purchase several things for her maiden aunt who was about to be married. "Do you suppose I should see a real robber, a veritable highwayman? That would be an adventure," she said excitedly. "How will he look? What is he like, anyway?"

Mr. Pembroke smiled with amusement as he noticed the eager, interested expression on Bessie's face. "Well, there's not much prospect of your meeting one," he said, "but if you should chance to, you might find him very polite and entertaining. In all probability he would not be noticeably different from any other stranger; one would reasonably suppose there would be nothing in dress or manner to particularly attract attention."

The next morning came bright and clear, and Bessie Pembroke stood upon the platform with her mother and sister waiting for the train which was to take her on her eventful journey.

"Take care of yourself and be sure to go and see Cousin Annie," Helen called after her as she hurried into the car.

Bessie found an unoccupied seat, and putting her cape and bag beside her, settled herself comfortably as the train steamed on. She took out her book and soon became so interested in her story that she hardly noticed as the conductor shouted the names of the way stations until Monmouth Junction was called and several passengers came aboard. The seats were almost full, and, as Bessie glanced around to see how the newcomers would fare a deep serious voice near her asked:

"Will you allow me to remove your bag, miss, and take this seat?"

Bessie bowed assent, and raising her eyes, saw a man, a trifle above the medium height, with a fine figure and a face not handsome, but certainly possessing an agreeable fascination that made the girl glance shyly up from her book at it more than once during the next half hour; there was nothing about his attire foppish or showy; his clothes were of fine material and in good taste, and were protected by a dark gray ulster.

Placing his grip beneath the seat and drawing a "daily" from his pocket, he at once became immersed in the news and obnoxious, apparently, to all that was going on around him.

Thus some time passed, then Bessie closed her book and furtively watched the stranger at her side. She began to wish he would say something; the journey seemed rather monotonous. She was becoming tired and had an idea that he might be quite entertaining if he chose. Presently, as she made a slight movement, her book slipped from her lap and fell to the floor. The gentleman at once reached for it and returned it to her, glancing at the title as he did so. "The Leavenworth Case," he said; "one of Katherine Green's productions. Are you fond of detective stories, miss?"

Bessie fancied that he looked at her a little oddly as he asked the question. Then he spoke of different authors and their writings, of foreign sketches and travels. Truly he was vastly entertaining and Bessie was an appreciative and delighted listener.

"Now it chanced that the seat directly behind these two fellow travelers was occupied by an elderly countryman and a young law student, and during a pause in the conversation Bessie heard the countryman remark: 'Well, I can't say as the administration is to blame, but it strikes me there is a screw loose somewhere, or our officials would show more promptness and energy in discharging their duties.'"

"Right you are, sir," responded the young law aspirant. "It is remarkable how negligent and dilatory our police and others in authority to carry out the laws are. Why, I hear there may be one or more burglars on this very train, but I'll venture to say they'll ride unmolested, and likely enough fleece some unsuspecting passenger in the bargain."

Bessie Pembroke's heart throbbed wildly; her father's words rushed into her mind at once, and her hand stole hastily into her pocket.

For a few moments imagination pictured all the perils she might be in, and which she was utterly powerless to avert; she could not change her seat, as the cars were crowded, so finally she determined to preserve her presence of mind and her aunt's money likewise, whatever happened.

They were rapidly approaching a tunnel through which the train must pass, and she felt a strong presentiment that in the darkness would come the struggle for her purse, and also the disappearance of the robber; therefore she decided that as soon as the cars entered the tunnel, she would hold on to her money, come what might.

Sooner than she had calculated the train rushed into the darkness and she immediately thrust her hand into her pocket, but an almost deadly faintness overpowered her for an instant, as she discovered that the man's hand was already there, and evidently grasping her purse.

Nothing remained now for the heroine little miss to do but to hold it there until they came into light again, when he must either be discovered or give up her property. So she seized the fellow's hand and held it with a strength and tenacity she did not imagine herself capable of exerting. After one or two hasty efforts to release himself, the hand of the pickpocket remained passive, and when a few moments (which seemed to the excited girl like hours) had passed, the cars flashed into the sunlight. Courageous Bessie did not relinquish her hold even then, but looked resolutely and defiantly up into the robber's face.

The girl glanced down—and—oh! if she only had the power to vanish! to dematerialize! For what had she done? Simply mistaken, in the darkness and her excitement, the outside pocket of the gentleman's duster (which was in close proximity to her dress) for her own.

She snatched her hand away, and tried to hide the burning blushes that covered her face, while the man quietly withdrew his hand from his pocket, holding the cigar he was in quest of. He talked as socially and pleasantly as if nothing in the least unusual had occurred; to be sure he carried on most of the conversation himself, but he did it so easily and entertainingly, that when the city station was reached, and Bessie's journey ended, she was able to make her replies some longer than monosyllables.

As she arose to leave the cars, the man got up also, and taking her cape and bag, escorted her to the waiting-room, and Bessie having decided to go first to her cousin's opened her book to look for the address she had placed there. But, unfortunately, it was gone. "Yes, it must have fallen out when the book slipped from her lap on the train," she thought, as with anxious eyes she turned the leaves.

"Have you lost anything, miss?" inquired her companion courteously.

"My cousin's address is gone; I must have dropped it," she said, looking up, then after a moment's pause, she asked, hesitatingly:

"Are you—a stranger in the city, sir? or could you please direct me to Mr. Hugh Elliot's?"

"Most certainly I can direct you," returned the young man, picking up the articles he had deposited on a chair. "I am going straight there myself, and shall be more than pleased to show you the way. I am Hugh's brother John."

"I Am Dreadfully Ashamed and Sorry."

Oh, how could she go there, for Cousin Annie was Hugh's wife, and this man his brother!

As he walked on, Bessie felt more and more keenly that some excuse must be made, so, gathering her courage, she said abruptly: "I wish I could explain what I did, sir, but I can't. I'm dreadfully ashamed and sorry, and I surely didn't intend to be rude—but—well—that's all I can say."

"Not the least explanation is needed. I heard what was said behind us, and you were a little anxious about your money and made quite a natural mistake—pray never think of it again."

Bessie drew a long breath of relief and tried to obey, but one evening, some months after, when the family circle was gathered about the Pembroke fireside, with the addition of one member, who had become quite a constant visitor, Helen reflectively remarked:

"It would be a real relief as well as a great satisfaction to me, Jack Elliot, to know when and where you and Bess first came across each other. I'm sure I cannot imagine, unless it was when Bess went to the city for Aunt Maria. Do tell me, was it there that you first yielded to woman's fascination?"

"Well, I think it was about that time that I succumbed to feminine charms," Jack returned. "Possibly, if I had been a pickpocket or a highwayman I might have escaped, but as I wasn't, I couldn't get away."

"What has a 'pickpocket' or a 'highwayman' to do with it?" Helen asked wonderingly. "Did you two have an adventure?" Oh, come now, tell us the whole story."

But Jack, looking up, encountered the imploring eyes of his little sweetheart, and said hastily:

TO OUR CUSTOMERS

We take this method of expressing our thanks for the most excellent patronage accorded us in the year now coming to a close, it adds another one of the most successful years to our long career of merchandising in Sedalia. This store is not addicted to inflating values that turn out to be $1.00 ones for 98c but on the contrary builds up on the merit of its goods rightly priced as it has done for over one-third of a century. However as the habit of all good stores we desire to clear out all winter merchandise by making sweeping reductions all over the store to be in readiness for our spring purchases and following our usual custom our stock will be larger and better than ever before.

WARRANT FOR A WRITER

FORMER SENATOR AND DENVER EDITOR ENGAGE IN FIGHT ON STREET.

YOUNG MAN BEAT UP AN OLD MAN

Accounts Given by the Principals, Both Gentlemen of Prominence, Differ in Detail, Agree as to Result.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 27.—While former United States Senator Thomas M. Patterson, who is also editor of the News, was on his way to his office at about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, he was attacked by Frederick C. Bonfils, one of the editors of the afternoon Post. Patterson was struck a blow in the temple and fell. Patterson received slight cuts about the eyes. The senator is 63 years old and Bonfils is in the prime of life, educated at West Point.

A warrant was sworn out last night for the arrest of Bonfils. The warrant was sworn to by Patterson. Senator Patterson issued a statement as follows:

"I heard quick footsteps behind me and a voice said 'Good morning.' I mechanically turned my head at the words and was immediately struck a heavy blow from behind on the side of the head that felled me.

"I was dazed for a short time, but while down felt additional heavy blows on my head and face. My assailant was caught by some person and pulled off. When I arose I knew for the first time who my assailant was.

"Mr. Bonfils, when I arose, threatened that if his name appeared in my paper tonight or at any other time he would kill me. I told him that I had but one life to lose and I would prefer to lose it rather than live in a city where lawlessness was rampant and be terrorized into silence concerning it."

Mr. Bonfils, in giving his side of the occurrence said:

"I was on my way to my office when I overtook Patterson. I passed him and said 'Good morning.' He mumbled some reply and seemed embarrassed. I said: 'So you are going to send me out of town or send me to prison, are you?'"

"He replied in an undertone something like 'I guess so,' and then I let him have it. I don't think I struck him with my clenched fist. He was either knocked or fell down, and he made an awful fuss about it.

"As he was getting up he tried to get a rock that lay near, and I struck him again on the face. He went down again and claimed I was threatening his life, when I only warned him not to use my name in any of his papers again."

The assault was an incident in a war between Mr. Patterson and the Post that has waged for years, in which various crimes have been charged back and forth.

ATHLETIC SOLONS MEET

THE INTERCOLLEGIATE ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES.

TO IMPROVE COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Session That Opened in New York Today Is Expected to Work Great and Lasting Benefit to College Sports.

New York, Dec. 27.—With a meeting of the executive committee, the annual convention of the Intercollegiate Association of the United States was opened here today. The session promises to be the most important ever held by persons interested in the development and improvement of college athletics. The general convention will be called tomorrow morning.

Seven of the fourteen members of the football rules committee will be named at this meeting, but there is not likely to be more than one change in the personnel of the present committee. The seven men who derive their office from the Intercollegiate Athletic association are E. K. Hall, of Dartmouth; Dr. J. A. Babbitt, of Haverford; Prof. C. W. Savage, of Oberlin; Charles D. Daly, of West Point; Prof. Dudley, of Vanderbilt; Dr. J. L. Lees, of Nebraska, and Dr. Harry L. Williams, of Minnesota. Every one of them has accomplished notable work in furthering the interests of the game and some of them have rendered conspicuous service.

Of the old members, W. T. Reid, jr., will be the only one replaced, Joshua Crane succeeding him as Harvard's representative. Walter Camp, for Yale, Prof. Fine for Princeton, John C. Bell for Pennsylvania, Prof. Dennis for Cornell, Paul Pashell for Annapolis and Lon Stagg for Chicago are sure to serve again.

It is the general opinion that there are not likely to be any very radical changes in the rules of play, whatever the outcome of the present meeting. The visiting football solons express a general satisfaction with the tendency of the game, although some believe that a great many minor changes have become necessary. It is improbable that the committee will wish to abandon the forward pass, although there is a strong disposition to do so, relying on the inside kick alone as a relief measure.

Walter Camp, of Yale, is no alone in feeling that the pass has been abused rather than used. Many believe that the pass, in its promiscuous use, has become anything but an evidence of skill in all but a few teams. The possibilities of its misuse are so many that it is almost certain that measures will be taken to curb it, and this is the impossible in the opinion of the new committee. It is not impossible that it may be abandoned. Of the present committee at least six members have declared that they will vote to abolish it if a satisfactory means of preventing its misuse cannot be found. Coach Alonzo Stagg, of the University of Chicago, has gone on record as urging the modification of the forward pass and changes in a number of less important features of the current gridiron game.

Another important question before the association is that of summer baseball. The pernicious influence of the game has been felt longer than the evils of football, which called for such drastic reforms two years ago, and it is expected that the campaign of the association against summer playing will be as successful as the football reforms for which it was largely responsible. The executive committee has made extended investigations relative to summer ball playing covering all the past year. Data has been collected to show its prevalence and plans prepared for its control. The committee has formulated what it believes will be a means to absolutely end the practice, and considers that in so doing it will work a great and lasting benefit to college sports.

Have you used "Pride of Perry"? If not, why not? Don't be stubborn, but follow the wise.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease.

While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Amusements

"The Clansman" to Say Goodbye.

Contracts have been signed whereby "The Clansman" will come to the Sedalia theater on Saturday, Jan. 11. Everybody remembers what a furor was created by this play last season and the season before, and there will be keen regret on the part of its many admirers that it is not to be a yearly welcome visitor. Since its first production, the fame of "The Clansman" has spread to all civilized lands. Managers from all over the Anglo-Saxon world have been asking for time, and Manager Geo. H. Brennan has decided to comply with their request, and take the play abroad for an extensive tour. He has got together a company and a production especially for that purpose and surpassing any previous presentation of the play yet made. After a short tour in this section, "The Clansman" will go direct to New York City and will run out the season there, after which it will embark on its adventurous world-voyage.

So far "The Clansman" has been witnessed by 3,000,000 people and there is no sign of diminishing popularity, so those who do not secure their seats early are likely to be disappointed.

In order to accommodate the many out of town visitors and those who can not visit the box office in person, mail orders for seats, if accompanied by remittance will be filled in the order of their receipt and tickets promptly forwarded. Address orders to George F. Olendorf.

Jack and Jill were both quite ill. Now each is well and wiser. For blues and headaches have to go. When they take an Early Riser, DeWitt's Little Early Riser Pills are sold by Arlington Pharmacy.

BEGGED TO END HIS LIFE

STRICKEN WITH TETANUS, DR. JOSEPH PEASEN PLEADS FOR DEATH.

ATTENDANTS ARE MOVED TO TEARS

Turn Away for Fear They Will Accede to His Request.—Sad Case Is Reported From Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Dr. Joseph Peasen, a scientist, occupying one of the foremost positions with Nelson Morris & Co., indicated by signs to Drs. J. B. Murphy, Frank Weiland and other physicians at his side in the Chicago Baptist hospital that he realized that the attack of lockjaw from which he is suffering would prove fatal, and begged them to end his life with a drug.

The surgeons hesitated before the dumb appeal of this man of science, probably more skilled in the effects of the disease which had seized him than any other in this country, and then turned away, for fear that they might grant his wishes.

When he found that the law, written and unwritten, would not permit his fellows to end his sufferings, Dr. Peasen resigned himself to the care of the nurses. He heard his physician say that if he lived another day there was hope for him. He shook his head.

On Christmas eve, while arranging a Christmas tree for his children in his home at 492 Lincoln street, Dr. Peasen was stricken with acute lockjaw. By the aid of a pencil and a piece of paper he directed the members of his family to send him to a hospital, and his first act was to send for a lawyer and draw up a will, leaving his estate to his wife's five children. Then he asked Mrs. Murphy and Weiland to consult with Dr. Frederick C. Hammore, chief surgeon of the Morris company.

The injury which brought on tetanus was a compound fracture of the nose, sustained a week ago. Dr. Peasen was going through a dark passage way leading from his laboratory to another part of the establishment when he fell down a short flight of stairs and struck his nose on a bed. The hurt caused an abrasion of the skin and the germs of tetanus infected it.

Dr. Peasen is the head of the fertilizer and glue department of Nelson Morris & Co. He was born in Germany 46 years ago. In the line of his studies tetanus was included and he is recognized as one of the ablest experts on lockjaw in all its forms.

Death Comes to Relief.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Dr. Joseph F. Peasen, a department superintendent employed by a Chicago packing firm, died tonight of lockjaw resulting from a fracture of the nose, which occurred a week ago.

During his illness he constantly joined with the hospital physicians in their consultations, and gave it as his opinion that he could not recover. The immediate cause of death was said to be heart failure following a convulsion.

marriages—marriages contracted by men who have not attained a full realization of the responsibilities of married life—are responsible for much of the unhappiness which reaches the attention of the Humane Society, in the opinion of Humane Agent Ricksecker.

"Young men become tired of married life very often," said Ricksecker yesterday. "Then they neglect their families. What is needed is a change in the law that will make the punishment for neglecting minor children more severe. If neglecting these little ones were made a penitentiary offense, the evil would be checked."

To check early colds or gripes with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. PROBLEMS OF THE HOME

WILL BE DISCUSSED IN HOUSE-KEEPERS' CONFERENCE AT COLUMBIA.

DATES ARE JAN. 7 TO 10, INCLUSIVE

Program Being Arranged That Will Include Topics to Be Handled by Many Prominent Persons.

Mrs. H. A. Pratt, one of Sedalia's best known club women, has furnished the Democrat-Sentinel with the following for publication:

A housekeepers' conference is to be held in Columbia farmers' week, January 7 to 10, inclusive.

The problems of the home certainly are as important as the problems of farm, the school, the store or the office. If farmers, teachers, merchants, lawyers and doctors have conferences, why not housekeepers?

Most of the work done outside of the home is for the sake of making things used in the home or money to buy things for the home.

The largest part of the work of the average home is done in the kitchen. A model kitchen will be on exhibition, suggesting means of making the work attractive and easy.

A program is being arranged that shall include a discussion of the following topics:

The care of milk, bread making, home decorating, the care of children, amusements in the home, the present crisis in the American home, the teaching of domestic science to children.

The following speakers are expected to lead in the discussions: Miss Caroline Hunt, professor of home economics in the University of Wisconsin; Miss Mabel Bevier, professor of household science, University of Illinois; Senator T. J. Wornall Liberty, Mo.; Dr. Eugene Davenport, University of Illinois; Mrs. L. E. Tracy, Chillicothe, Mo.

The University of Missouri will be represented by Dean H. J. Waters, of the college of agriculture; Dr. C. A. Ellwood, professor of sociology; Mr. J. S. Ankney, Jr., assistant professor of free-hand drawing; Dr. Walter McNab Miller, professor of pathology and bacteriology; Miss Edith Parker, of the department of manual training; Miss Louise Stanley and Miss Edna D. Day, of the department of home economics. Mrs. C. W. Green, Mrs. G. M. Whipple, Mrs. F. H. Seavey and Mrs. Walter McNab Miller, of Columbia, will also speak.

Some time will be left for impromptu conferences. Go with your problems and be prepared to tell how you have managed and succeeded in making your home beautiful, beautiful and happy. Much inspiration and wisdom can be gained from this conference.

THE FARM WATER.

It Should Be Piped in Some Way to All Buildings Where Needed.

All farm buildings should be supplied with water brought underground in pipes from the source of water supply. The barns as well as the dwellings should be thus supplied. The cost is small and the convenience great. Many a farmer is carrying water year after year not only for his stock but for the use of the family when the water should be always at hand. The chief reason for this is the lifelong habit of the farmer, which he does not see the advantage of changing.

Recently a case came to the attention of the writer that shows how a man will hang to an old condition when he has no reason for doing so. A young man from one of the farms went to college and got some new ideas. He studied farm mechanics, and got a little taste for mechanical engineering. When he returned to the farm he saw many things that might be done to increase the comfort of the family and make the work easier.

One of the drawbacks of the farm was the necessity for carrying water some hundreds of feet to the house and the barn, and this water had to be carried in pails. Moreover, during most of the year the boy's mother had to carry the water that was used in the kitchen. The father was opposed to any improvements and refused to let the boy exercise his ability in making improvements.

On the farm a little way from the house was a perpetual spring sufficiently high above the house so that if a pipe were laid the water would of itself flow into the kitchen. The temptation for the boy to utilize this supply was so great that he could not resist it. So the first time he went to town he laid in a supply of pipe and the materials for making joints and connections, with taps and faucets. Then he began his work clandestinely. When his father would be away for half a day or so the young man would dig a trench, lay what pipe he could and cover it up again before his father got home. He continued this till he had laid the pipe from the spring to the house, had made all attachments and had the water running into the sink, where his mother could use it at will and without effort.

At this stage he was no longer able to keep the secret from the head of the house. As it had gone so far the father accepted the fact as accomplished, but he refused permission to the boy to carry the pipe just a little further to the barn. It is a strange thing that people will become so "set in their ways" as not to avail themselves of natural laws, which were created to serve them.

FEED THE RABBITS.

How They May Be Kept from Damaging the Trees.

Where these pests are bad it is not safe to take chances on anything else than a good wooden protector around each and every small tree, out in places where rabbits are not plentiful the trees can be saved without this expense.

Although my place is pretty well covered with trees I use no protectors and have not lost a single tree. About this time of the year, depending on the season, I trim a few trees in different parts of the orchards, which keeps the rabbits supplied with what they desire of this sort of food until the first snow storm, at which time another day's pruning is done and later on they are fed again in the same way. As stated previously, a rabbit will not turn his head to gnaw a tree if he can get the same favorite food from branches lying before him in a horizontal position. It is generally one or a few rabbits that first get into the habit of barking trees and others learn it from them. If when the first barked trees are noticed a piece of apple with a little strychnine on it is placed near those trees you will find Mr. Rabbit stretched out stiff near there the next morning. This medicine works quickly on rabbits, killing them almost instantly upon eating the bait.

GARGET.

An Ailment of Cows at Calving Time and How to Treat It.

Garget or caked udder is quite a common trouble which occurs usually just before or just after calving. The udder becomes hard and the glands are enlarged and feverish. There are usually no bad consequences from the trouble unless it is neglected. It is caused by a large supply of milk remaining in the udder and is some times aggravated by neglecting to milk out or by the cow standing in a draft of cold air. In cases of this kind it is not well to milk the cow out clean as the irritation caused by milking makes matters worse. The best procedure is to only partially empty the udder and then reduce the inflammation with a fomentation of warm water. The mere sucking of a hungry calf and the working of the teats will sometimes help. It is also well to rub the affected parts well with the palm of the hand after each milking and rub in a little camphorated ointment or some unsalted lard or oily substance. It takes several days to get rid of the trouble.

WHAT MILK COSTS.

Result of Tests by the Cornell University Experiment Station.

In a year's observation and record keeping with the dairy cows, their feed, etc., Cornell university finds the cost of producing milk as follows:

1st. With a fairly good herd, carefully fed and kept, milk can be produced for 65 cents a hundred pounds, and fat for 16 cents a pound for the last of the food consumed.

2d. That individuals of the same breed vary more widely in milk and butter production than do the breeds themselves.

3d. The large animals consumed less pounds of dry material per 1,000 pounds live weight a day than did the smaller animals.

4th. That in general the best yields of fat were obtained from cows that gave at least a fairly large flow of milk.

5th. In general, the cows consuming the most food produced both milk and fat at the lowest rate.

6th. For the production of milk and fat there is no food as cheap as good pasture grass.

After exposure or when you feel a cold coming on take a few doses of Foley's Honey and Tar and it will expel the cold from your system. It cures the most stubborn coughs and colds, and prevents pneumonia. Arlington Pharmacy.

SHEDDING SWEET TEETH

GROWTH OF CIGARETTE HABIT IS GIVEN AS THE REAL CAUSE OF IT.

WOMEN'S ABANDONMENT OF CANDY

Nowadays the Fair Sex Think Nothing of Drinking Whisky and Soda While Seated at the Leading Restaurants.

London, Dec. 27.—It has been noticed at women's clubs, and at restaurant dinners, that women are far less keen on sweets than they were a few years ago. They have developed a taste for savories, they eat with gusto such spiced and seasoned dishes as would positively have affronted them twenty years ago, and actually punished their delicate palates.

To the cigarette habit, which is growing on women to a remarkable extent, is assigned the cause. Other observers declare that women have largely educated their palates to stronger flavors since they have been growing more and more masculine in their tastes.

A quarter of a century ago it was the exception rather than the rule to find women publicly drinking spirits, whereas whisky and soda is now freely taken at table and in public restaurants by quite young women.

Again, for years women were rated for feeding themselves in unsuitable fashion. Buns and tea were supposed to satisfy the gastronomic taste of any one of the sex, and in consequence they were unmercifully "chaffed," derided, upbraided.

Then women grew bolder. They took violent exercise, they grew in stature and gastronomic wisdom. They copied the superior sex. They followed their lead in athletics, in the use of nerve-soothing tobacco and in the craving for "strong meats," both liquid and solid.

And now men are grumbling that women are not satisfied with sugary confections or comforted with innumerable chocolates.

HAMILTON BANK REOPEN

Half the Depositors Sign Petition for It to Resume.

Kingston, N. Y., Dec. 27.—Supreme Court Justice Betts yesterday afternoon rendered a decision permitting the Hamilton bank, of New York city, now in the hands of a receiver, to reopen.

The Hamilton bank, after paying out during the panic $1,500,000, closed its doors October 24. On November 16 Attorney General Jackson applied to Justice Betts for receivers for this and five other New York and Brooklyn banks. Temporary receivers were appointed for all.

On December 3 counsel for depositors and stockholders presented a plan for resumption, which provided for payment to depositors as follows: Ten per cent on demand, 15 per cent in ninety days, 15 per cent in six months, 60 per cent in one year. More than 50 per cent of the depositors had signed this agreement.

A GOULD LINE DIVIDEND

MEETING OF MISSOURI PACIFIC OFFICIALS IN NEW YORK YESTERDAY.

IS TO BE PAID IN STOCK THIS TIME

Persident George J. Gould and the Directors Make a Statement That Is of Wide Interest at the Present Time.

New York, Dec. 27.—The Missouri Pacific Railway company yesterday declared a semi-annual dividend of 2 1/2 per cent, payable in stock. The stock dropped on the exchange from 47 1/4 to 45 1/4.

Before the issuance of a formal statement, which was made later, President George J. Gould said that the dividend had been earned, but the committee thought in view of the present financial conditions, the most conservative and the wisest action to take was the one chosen.

Mr. Gould said that to a considerable extent he was obliged to take the matter upon his own shoulders, and that the action was of vital interest to him because he is a very large holder of Missouri Pacific stock.

Regarding financial and business conditions generally, Mr. Gould said that he thought he saw signs of improvement. He referred to the latest returns of the Western Union telegraph company, which, he pointed out, are a very good barometer of general conditions, and said he noted that the decreases were not as large as they were some weeks ago.

The formal statement follows: "The board of directors of the Missouri Pacific railway company has declared a dividend of 2 1/2 per cent payable in stock at par. This action was taken pursuant to the following report and recommendations of the executive committee.

"The executive committee transmits statements of operation and financial results, actual and estimated, for the six months ended December 31, 1907. Although the surplus income shown would, under ordinary conditions, imply warrant a declaration of the usual semi-annual cash dividend of 2 1/2 per cent, in the extraordinary business and financial condition which now prevails, it is the conviction of this committee that a distribution from the cash resources of the company would be ill judged.

"While indications of improvement in the financial situation and of recovery from the considerable depression which has befallen the country are reassuring, it is but reasonable caution to provide against delay in the readjustment of the situation which has been so seriously shocked.

"A policy of strict conservatism at this juncture is far more to the present and permanent interest of the stockholders than one of incaution or overconfidence. This committee does not believe that large cash disbursements, which are discretionary, should be made at such a juncture, and when the future of business is not assured, and the extent and effect of the burdens imposed by legislators and commissioners have not been fully measured.

"Since, however, the dividend has been earned, it is right that the stockholders should receive in a proper representative form the earnings which would ordinarily be distributed to them in cash, and which have been used for capital account in the improvement and development of the road; and this committee, while advising against any application to dividends of the cash resources of the company, recommends the payment in the stock of the company at par of the full stock dividend of 2 1/2 per cent upon the outstanding shares. The dividend is payable on January 30 to stock of record on January 4. Books close on January 4 and reopen on January 14."

Mr. Gould said after the meeting of directors that no action was taken regarding the $6,000,000 collateral trust gold notes maturing on February 10 next, and adding that the matter would be taken up at the January meeting.

The regular meeting of Sedalia Aerie No. 601, F. O. E., was held last night and W. E. Stanley was elected secretary, vice L. C. Redmond, resigned.

At the meeting next week, J. C. Schmid, past worthy president, will install the officers-elect, and on the following meeting night the members will partake of a roast pig supper, the meat for the occasion being furnished by Walter Morey.

WAGNER IS ON WARPATH

QUACKS SENT A CARLOAD OF MEDICINE FOR GREAT BALL PLAYER.

GRAND OLD MAN HAS RHEUMATISM

The Fact Was Printed in the Newspapers, and Since Then the "Flying Dutchman" Has Been Kept Very Busy.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 27.—"It's bad enough to have rheumatism in the salary shoulder, but to have every quack in the world know about it is worse."

Hans Wagner, the world famed ball player, made this remark yesterday when he received another carload of patent medicines sent by kind persons to fix up his rheumatism.

Some time ago it was mentioned that Wagner was having a mild attack of rheumatism in his shoulder and he asked the Pittsburg club to allow him to lay off for the whole season. This was published all over the country, when, according to Wagner, every tenth person in the United States got busy sending him suggestions, circulars, sample bottles, bundles of herbs, etc.

The heavy work of handling the rheumatism remedies fell to the offices of the Pittsburg ball club. By last evening one whole side of one of the offices was piled up with remedies for Wagner. The "Flying Dutchman" having scented trouble, refused to come near the office.

THE TEACHERS OF MUSIC

TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

OTHER CONVENTIONS ALSO MEET

There is an Unprecedented Attendance of Musical Educators From All Parts of the United States.

New York, Dec. 27.—With an address of welcome by President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia university, the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the National Music Teachers' association was formally opened in Earl hall this morning.

The attraction of spending the holiday season in New York has resulted in an unprecedented attendance of musical educators from all parts of the United States, and gives promise of an interesting session.

Delegates are also here from the American branch of the International Musik-Gesellschaft, the Eastern Educational Music conference and the American Guild of Organists, all of which are holding their annual conventions in connection with that of the Music Teachers' association.

No sessions of the convention will be held tomorrow afternoon or evening, when the visitors will be the guests of the Metropolitan Museum of Arts, and will inspect the famous Crosby-Brown collection of musical instruments. At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon a special vesper service will be held in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church under the auspices of the American Guild of Organists, to which service the members of the guild and the association will go in a body.

Monday's program includes an address by Prof. Ralph L. Baldwin, of New York, on "The Aim of Music Courses in Grammar Schools," and in the afternoon Walter Stry, of Chicago, and Ludwig Marim, of New York, will give a piano and violin recital.

On Tuesday Waldo S. Pratt, of Hartford Theological seminary, who is president of the association, will give an address on "Standards in Musical Education." Henry Dyke Sleeper, of Smith college, will also speak.

PROFITABLE POULTRY.

How Your Flock Can Be Made So in the Winter Season.

The profit of the poultry in the winter depends on the number of eggs gathered. So the farmer should provide the winter quarters for his hens with this end in view, and it will really cost but little if anything more to do so.

To get eggs in the winter, summer conditions must be produced as far as possible. The poultry house should be located on a high and dry spot. If the floor is of dirt it must be more elevated than the outside surface to prevent dampness. The door should open to the south, and it will be best if the whole south side of the house can be opened for ventilation whenever desired. Some poultrymen have several sliding windows in the south which can be easily pushed back in warm weather and closed during stormy days. These serve also to let in the sunlight, and a sun bath is very essential to the health of the hens.

The windows should be low enough to let the sunlight fall on the floor, so the hens may get the full benefit of it. One successful poultryman hangs burlap curtains close around his hen roosts, pulled them down at night in cold weather and rolled them up in the daytime. He declared the curtains to be very satisfactory, as the hens shell out the eggs and are healthy. When the curtains were lowered at night he opens the windows to let in the fresh air unless it is extremely cold. There is no doubt but that a tightly-closed room will be disastrous to the flock, for hens, like men, must have fresh air to be healthy.

The winter feed for hens should be like that they get in the summer. A small feed from the owner to which is added weed seed, bugs, flies, worms, sprigs of grass and grains of gravel, is about the variety a hen gathers during a summer's day. With this she gets plenty of exercise. In the winter the hen cannot get this variety of feed herself, so it must be provided by the poultryman. Green cut bones of beef scraps will take the place of insects, only care must be taken not to feed too much. Feed grain in a deep litter of leaves or straw and plenty of exercise will be obtained in scratching for it. Oyster shells should be kept where the hens may help themselves, for they must have lime for egg shells. A box with four apartments, one each for beef scraps, oyster shells, grit and charcoal, should be in easy reach of the hens. There is no better bowel regulator than charcoal, and the hen should never be without it.

Of course there are no set rules for feeding grain that will prove successful in every instance, says Farmers' Review. One must use his best judgment and feed according to breed of fowls, conditions and prices of grain. Some have found a hot mash for morning, noon and night very profitable, while others succeed best by feeding grain. There are those who keep feed constantly before their hens to a profit and others prefer feeding what they will eat at stated intervals. One must find the most profitable method and stick to it in spite of what others may suggest. But don't forget that green food of some kind should be supplied. Cabbage leaves or red clover are good and alfalfa is simply first class. Beets or turnips chopped will also be relished. The water supply should be copious and palatable. Provide it every day, and if the weather is extremely cold set the vessel containing it on a heated rock and it will not freeze for 10 or 12 hours.

By constant care of the hens during the winter months the eggs will fall into your basket and money into your pocket.

FEEDING FOR EGGS.

Some Suggestions That May Prove Helpful to Poultry Raisers.

All other conditions being right, there are many methods of breeding that will bring good results, but some methods are better adapted to one breed than another. There are some things, however, that should be borne in mind—the hen cannot lay unless she has the proper material from which to form the egg.

Every element in the egg must come from the food. For a time a persistent hen can extract some of the missing elements from her body, but this will not last long before the hen becomes thin and will cease laying altogether.

Exercise promotes health and works off superfluous fat; therefore, for all confined fowls the grain should be buried in chaff or litter. Water is as important as food, and the hens should always have a full supply. Nearly 70 per cent. of an egg and from 40 to 50 per cent. of a hen's body is water.

No one article of diet will produce eggs. The ration should consist of grain, meat and green food—all of these are essential. Many breeders place a great deal of reliance on a mash of grain and meat as a main ration. These mash meals consist of various mill products rich in protein.

A mash meal which is recommended as the result of long experiment, says the Northwestern Agriculturist, is 200 pounds wheat bran, 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds wheat middlings, 100 pounds linseed meal, 100 pounds beef scraps. To this is added one-fourth its bulk of clover leaves. The clover is covered with hot water and allowed to stand for three or four hours. The mash is made quite dry and is rubbed well in mixing, so the clover is separated and mixed with the meal.

It Pays.
It pays to feed the young fowls liberally until full grown. Chickens are not unlike calves, colts and other animals. Once stunted they never regain their vigor, not with the most careful feeding.

Poor Coops.

Poor coops are the cause of many losses of chickens. It is the night time when the marauding cat, the marauding rat or the skunk comes to get his supper. He searches carefully about and tries the different coops. The owner of the chicks is asleep, and the chicks are themselves asleep. The prowler tries the woodwork of the coops and finds a latch loose. He slips in and the slaughter begins. He can see well in the dark, but the chicks cannot and are helpless. The owner in the morning finds all of the chicks in that coop slaughtered, though but one or two have been eaten. This loss might have been prevented by having absolutely tight coops.

No Difference.

There is practically no difference in food value between the egg with a brown shell and the one with a white shell. This is the conclusion arrived at in tests made at the California experiment station.

CANKER OR SORE MOUTH.

A Disease Which is Apt to Appear in the Herd in the Spring.

It usually happens in the spring that there is a great deal of complaint from this trouble. The disease is one that is quite common in almost every section of the country and while it has been noticed that it is more prevalent some seasons than others, we feel justified in quoting from Mr. S. M. Shepard in his excellent book, "The Hog in America," on account of the number of letters we have recently received asking for information about this disease. Mr. Shepard thinks it is usually the result of unhealthful milk from the sow or from poison on her teats obtained by contact with poisonous vines or wet grass. He says: "The first symptoms are lumps on the sow's udder, and sometimes sores; next will be noticed blisters on the lip, tongue and mouth of the pig; the tongue and lips become swollen and the roof and the sides of the mouth inflamed and covered with deep red or white blister spots. Swab the pig's mouth out thoroughly with a solution of carbolic acid and water sufficiently strong to make the flesh upon the arm tingle. Apply with a rag or small piece of sponge tied on a stick. Strong sage tea applied in the same way is good and in addition blow powdered sulphur through a straw into the pig's mouth. Bathe the sow's teats and udder with a weak solution of carbolic acid, and keep afflicted litters away from other pigs."

CUPID'S PLAN IS BALKED

TELEGRAPH COMPANY SUE BY YOUNG WIDOW LIVING AT SEATTLE, WASH.

DID NOT DELIVER THE TELEGRAM

Because of This Fact the Wedding Was Not Solemnized, and, in Consequence, the Woman Asks $1,400 Damages.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 27.—The Western Union Telegraph company has been made defendant in a sort of a breach of promise suit, in which damages of $1,990 are claimed.

It is alleged that the telegraph company failed for two days to deliver a telegram notifying Mrs. Augusta Eller that Joseph Eller, a Californian, would be here to marry her on November 13.

He filed the telegram, so he alleges, on November 12, from Ashland, Ore., but it was not delivered to the woman.

Eller wanted to marry her in Tacoma, and because she did not get word that the marriage deal was on, she brought the suit against the telegraph company.

A second telegram was sent to the Seattle woman, clinching the marriage ceremony, but nothing came of it. Mrs. Eller, a woman with two children, failed to meet the prospective groom, and he immediately returned to California.

As a result she alleges in a complaint filed that the telegraph company is to blame.

REGARDING RAILROADS

THE C. B. & Q. HAS ORGANIZED WHAT IS KNOWN AS EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

A general order has been issued by the Burlington establishing a department to be known as the bureau of employment on January 1. The establishment of this new department will, it is felt, greatly increase the general efficiency of the service, and aid the company in weeding out undesirable.

All applications for employment with the company in the future must come through this bureau. It will be under the general supervision of Vice President Willard. A record of the time spent and the nature of the employment will be kept, as well as the character of the service rendered the company.

The management states that this step is taken for a two-fold reason. First, to keep the records complete of the character and length of service of persons now employed, or hereafter to be employed by the company, and, secondly, to assist the officers charged with the duty of employing to secure first-class timber.

All applicants for employment, according to the new conditions stated, must pass satisfactory examinations as to physical, technical and personal qualifications. A record of all failings, character and length of service, debit marks and the reason therefor, and of all transfers, will be kept by the department.

It is expressly stated in the announcement that these conditions apply only to skilled labor. An order has been filed creating J. N. Redfern, head of the relief department, as superintendent of the new bureau, with Dr. J. A. Denny as chief assistant and medical examiner.

SPURNS GODLESS GIFT

Pennsylvania Preacher Returns a Christmas Gift.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 27.—"This Godless money I can not take," declared the Rev. Dr. W. A. Jones, pastor of the Knoxville Presbyterian church on the south side in this city, when at the close of a Christmas treat in the church his congregation presented him with a purse containing $100 in new gold coins, five of the new issue of $20 gold pieces. The congregation had made up the purse as a Christmas gift to the pastor, and one of the trustees, who is a banker, had the collection changed into new money.

"My mother taught me to look for the motto, 'In God we trust,' on the coins of our country," said the Rev. Dr. Jones in a little speech to his congregation, "and when the president announced his new order effacing the inscription from the coins, I swore I would take no money that did not bear the old motto."

Some of the congregation objected and attempted to argue the case. The pastor tossed the gold into his hat and handed it back with an air of finality. The trustees took back the money and agreed to change it for coin bearing the required motto.

The banks expected few demands, as they were convinced the feeling of financial unrest was practically over. In most cases today's withdrawals were more than offset by deposits.

Danger in a Cold

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Not only pneumonia, but also the infectious diseases such as diphtheria and scarlet fever start with a cold. The cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs of these diseases. Take our advice—cure your cold while you can.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy by its remarkable cures of colds has become a staple article of trade and commerce. It is prompt; it is effective; it is reliable. Try it.
